New Creations
2 Cor. 5:17; Ezek. 36:26-27

Though creation itself displays the rich canvas of God's creative character, nothing in all creation echoes the heart of God more than a person who has been made new.

   4. _____ – From _____to renewed _____.
      Related texts – Romans 8:1-2; Ephesians 2:10; Psalm 139:13-16

5. Of these four relationships, which do you find most challenging at this stage of your life? Why?

6. What would our church look like if these four dimensions of new creation became increasingly evident in our community?

7. Summary Statement for New Creations:

   What is revealed of God's character when we experience his fingerprints in the 4 relational transformations?

8. Is there anything additional that you would like to add or discuss?

Respond

1. What is one relationship or area of life where you sense God inviting you to experience a deeper transformation?

Next Week – Part 9

The Poetry of God
Ephesians 2:1-10

As the heavens declare God's handiwork, so do those who have been saved by grace and become masterpieces of God's creative work in us.

Series Summary

In this series, we'll explore how the world around us points beyond itself to the God who made it. From the vastness of the galaxies to the complexity of life itself, creation reveals not only God's power and wisdom but also the depth of His love for us.

Together, we'll discover that the fingerprints of God are everywhere and etched into the beauty of nature, woven into the story of humanity, and ultimately revealed in His desire to know us and be known by us. As we journey through Scripture, we'll see that we are not accidents of chance, but beloved creations, carefully formed by the hands of a loving Creator.
